COUNTERCLAIMS

Defendant-counterclaim plaintiff Digital Technology Licensing LLC ("DTL"), having its principal place of business at 75 Montebello Park, Suffern, New York 10901-3740, for its counterclaim against plaintiff-counterclaim defendant Motorola, Inc. ("Motorola") hereby alleges as follows:

1. DTL is a limited liability company organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal place of business at 75 Montebello Park, Suffern, New York 10901-3740.

2. Motorola, is a Delaware corporation, having its principal place of business at 1303 East Algonquin Road, Schaumburg, Illinois 60196.

3. This action is for patent infringement arising under the patent laws of the United States, 35 U.S.C. §§ 1 et seq. Subject matter jurisdiction is conferred upon this Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1338(a).

4. Motorola is engaged in supplying, marketing, and selling equipment in the Southern District of New York, including equipment that comes within the scope of claim 20 of the '799 Patent.

5. Venue is proper in this judicial district under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391(b), 1391(c), and 1400(b).

6. Personal jurisdiction over Motorola comports with the United States Constitution because Motorola is committing and/or contributing to the acts of patent infringement alleged in this counterclaim in this district.

7. On September 24, 1991, United States Patent No. 5,051,799 ("the '799 Patent") entitled "Digital Output Transducer," was duly and lawfully issued based upon an application filed by the inventors, Jon D. Paul, Mark D. Clayton, and Anthony M. Agnello.

8. DTL is the owner by assignment of the '799 Patent and has the right to sue and recover damages for infringement thereof.

9. Motorola has directly and/or contributorily infringed, and/or induced infringement of, and is continuing to directly and/or contributorily infringe, and/or induce infringement of, the '799 Patent by selling and offering to sell products and by using and inducing others to sell, offer to sell, products, that come within the scope of claim 20 of the '799 Patent. Upon information and belief, such products include, but are not limited to digital cellular telephones; infrastructure used for the implementation of digital cellular telephones and placing digital telephone calls; accessories for digital cellular telephones, including headsets for same; Bluetooth compatible electronics for transmission of audio signals; Bluetooth telephone headsets; and such other and further devices, infrastructure and equipment that Motorola sells that comes within the scope of claim 20 of the '799 Patent.

10. Upon information and belief, after reasonable opportunity for further investigation and discovery, it is likely that the evidence will show that the acts of infringement of Motorola have occurred with knowledge of the '799 Patent and are willful and deliberate. This action, therefore, is "exceptional" within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. § 285.

11. DTL has been damaged by the infringement by Motorola and is suffering, and will continue to suffer, irreparable harm and damage as a result of this infringement, unless such infringement is enjoined by this Court.

12. DTL has no adequate remedy at law.

WHEREFORE, DTL demands judgment as follows:

- A. an order adjudging Motorola to have infringed the '799 Patent;
- B. an judicial declaration that the '799 Patent is valid and enforceable;
- C. a dismissal of Motorola's claims with prejudice;
- D. a permanent injunction enjoining Motorola, together with its officers, agents, servants, employees, and attorneys, and all persons in active concert or participation with any of them who receive actual notice of the order by personal service or otherwise, from infringing the '799 Patent;

E. an award of damages adequate to compensate DTL for the infringement of Motorola, along with prejudgment and postjudgment interest, but in no event less than a reasonable royalty, such damages to be trebled pursuant to the provisions of 35 U.S.C. § 284;

F. an award of DTL's reasonable attorney fees and expenses, pursuant to the provisions of 35 U.S.C. § 285;

G. an award of DTL's costs; and

H. such other and further relief as this Court may deem just and proper.

DEMAND FOR TRIAL BY JURY

Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b), DTL hereby demands a jury trial on all issues so triable raised in this action.
